By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO May 28 —(UP)—Stressing the need of additional funds, Controller Ray L. Riley sold $70,000 worth of relief warrants, the last available for the fiscal year. The warrants, were purchased at a substantial premium.

A drop of $500,000 in revenue from the state gasoline tax was reported by the state board of equalization for last month. While the April income of $3,936,294 was well below the $4,404,051 of March, the April figure did represent an increase of 7 1/2 per cent over the comparable period of last year.

Board members blamed the increased price of gasoline for the substantial drop in sales during the month.

Responsibility for any losses occasioned by future issues of liquor stamps rests with the state department of finance. The board of equalization so informed the department after Director A. E. Stockburger ignored recommendations of the board regarding a stamp contract award. At the same time a request was made for immediate delivery of 25,000,000 stamps to supply current needs.

Despite pressure of British governmental officials Governor Merriam refused to grant a third reprieve to Alexander MacKay and the British subject, along with Joseph Kristy, was hanged for participation in a prison break. Earl Kimball was hanged at Folsom prison on the same day to give California its first triple execution in several years.

Chamber of Commerce Seeks Community Needs

At recent meetings of the Chamber of Commerce the subject has been discussed of bringing certain needs of the community before the various candidates who are seeking public office.

There are many needs in the community that have been discussed by various groups, which would work for the betterment of the community, and the Chamber of Commerce feels if the candidates for the various offices were acquainted with the wishes of the people, that there may be a means of securing some of these needed changes and improvements for the town.

The Chamber of Commerce is asking for suggestions from the people of the community, as to their views of things that might be done to improve the town. As suggestions are received, a list will be made and in the near future the candidates will be invited to attend a meeting and these matters will be brought up for discussion. They will be asked to give either their approval or disapproval of the suggestions.

HIGHWAY SYSTEM IS OUTSTANDING

Taxpayers Have Contributed More Than $1,000,000- 000 During Past 25 Years

SACRAMENTO May 28 —(UP)—California taxpayers have contributed more than $1,000,000,000 (B) during the past 25 years for the construction of one of the outstanding highway systems in the world.

Keeping pace with the great increase in automobiles, the road building program dates back to 1906, when the earliest horseless carriages encountered difficult going on trails built for horses and wagons. By 1910, when the registration of cars in California had grown from 6,428 to 36,136, good roads committees were being formed and a more active interest taken in smoothing the way for the machines which were appearing with more and more frequency.

Automobile registration topped 100,000 in 1913 for the first time, and along about that time paved roads were becoming in evidence outside of cities.

The first highway bond issue was floated 25 years ago before there was anything like a heavy income from a tax on gasoline. Since then, the following amounts exclusive of city and county tax revenues, have been devoted to highways and city streets.

Revenue from the state gas tax, $327,920,722.

Auto license and fees, $155,721,408.

Highway bond issues, $74,115,830.

General state taxation, $60,048,818.

Federal aid, $53,890,230 (largely a return to California of federal monies collected here).

Gross receipts taxes on trucks and buses, $8,755,058.

During the same period of time, the state has allocated back to the counties more than $160,000,000 of the funds collected by means of the gas tax and license fees.

In 25 years, the registration of automobiles jumped from 6,428 to more than 2,250,000, and California now leads all other states in number of pleasure cars, and is second only to New York in number of trucks, trailers, buses and other commercial vehicles.

The state highway system alone has accounted for nearly $700,000,000, while city streets and county roads have boosted the total well beyond $1,000,000,000, according to figures in the state department of motor vehicles.

Couple Injured As Car Goes Over Bank

Mrs. Helen Dolley and Vincent Hurtado, stationery engineer with the State Highway Department who are engaged in oiling the highway between Truckee and Hobart Mills, were injured early Friday morning when the coupe in which they were riding went over the bank east of the Frank Kearney ranch on the Reno Highway.

W. Rover, driver for the Burlington Trailways, which leaves Truckee about 3 o'clock in the morning, noticed the head lights of a car over the bank as he was driving towards Reno. Upon investigation he found the couple badly hurt. He placed the injured people in his stage and brought them to Truckee for medical attention.

The couple were attended by Dr. J. H. Bernard. Mrs. Dolley was found to be suffering from numerous cuts and bruises and was removed to the home of friends. She later was taken to the home of her mother in Portola to recuperate. Mr. Hurtado was more seriously hurt and aside from cuts and bruises it was feared he was suffering from internal injuries. Dr. Bernard rendered first aid to the man and he was taken to the county hospital at Nevada City for further medical attention. It is reported that he will be confined to the hospital for several months as he suffered a broken pelvis.

LAKE TAHOE LEVEL AGREEMENT NEAR

Settlement of Thirty Year Controversy Over Water Withdrawals From Lake Near as Result of Confer- ence.

A settlement of the thirty-year controversy over water withdrawals from Lake Tahoe and lake levels appeared near, following a meeting of the California members of the Lake Tahoe Water Conference.

The conference had under consideration the proposed new Truckee River agreement designed to supplant the present agreement which under a 1915 court decision, has governed water conditions on the lake since that time.

While the California members plan to confer with Attorney General U. S. Webb and F. C. Herrman, engineer for the conference, before making a final report, the members expressed the opinion the new agreement appears to be satisfactory.

The agreement already has received the approval of the federal reclamation bureau and Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, as well as of the three Nevada members of the two-state conference. Over 90 per cent of the members of the Washoe County Conservation District, and the Truckee-Carson Reclamation District also have approved the proposed agreement.

The long dispute over the regulation of the Lake Tahoe waters under the old agreement grew out of the fact the three interests most intimately involved—The Sierra Pacific Power Company and the two reclamation districts—under the court decree distributed the waters among themselves without regard to the interests of lake property owners and the two states in maintaining lake levels.

Disagreement also grew out of the fact that water diverted during the Winter for power passed the Truckee Meadows Farmers district and was stored in the Lahontan Dam for Summer use of the owners in the Truckee-Carson District. No provision was made for irrigation demands of the Washoe County District in a dry season when water no longer flowed from the lake.

The new agreement, correcting these and other controversial matters provides for a 45,000 acre-foot reservoir on the Little Truckee River, extending north of Boca. Forty thousand acre, feet are reserved for the special needs of the Washoe County district and 4,800 acre feet for the power company, which holds options on the site of the reservoir. There would be then no longer need for the farmers of the Washoe County district to apply for the privilege of pumping water from the lake in dry seasons.

A $1,000,000 federal appropriation is available for the construction of the reservoir, the amount to be repaid by Washoe County and the (Continued on Page 6)

G-MEN DO JOB WELL

A swell job, said California editors, commenting on the roundup of long-sought kidnapers by the G-men.

The federal agents, it was agreed, have justified all the fine things that have been said about them and have demonstrated their great value in the war on crime.

"The kidnap racket," according to the Santa Cruz Sentinel, "has been cornered, beaten to its knees and hog-tied by the United States Department of Justice. With the arrest of Thomas H. Robinson, the final name on the hunted list of major kidnapers was removed. It is reassuring to Americans to know that our federal agents have earned the respect of the nation and are feared everywhere by criminals. It is a happy contrast to the embarrassing episodes of a few years ago when gangsters made sport of shooting their way out of every encounter with law enforcement agents."

"It is a wonderful piece of work," remarks the Long Beach Pres-Telegram, "the more noteworthy because in these recent instances there has been no shooting and no loss of life in enforcing the law's decrees. No doubt the success of this drive against kidnaping will have salutary effect on other criminal gangs. One certain result is to popularize the policy of giving the federal government broad powers in its campaign on lawlessness."

"The rapidity with which the federal government's police agency has cleaned the records of the country by the whirlwind roundup of its public enemies," notes the Madera Tribune. * * * shows the need for the complete reorganization of the police systems of the states and their subdivisions. There is no reason why the same effectiveness that has been shown by the department of justice agents can not be obtained in all police circles. Principally, the problem is one removing the police agencies from the clutches of politics—not an easy task it is to be admitted.

"It is surprising," said the San Rafael Independent, "that the United States was so long in learning that nothing less than a strong federal force could whip the gangsters, racketeers and kidnapers. But once the G-men were put on the job with adequate arms and organization, they carried through relentlessly. The big time era has been a dark page in America's history, and the whole world has looked on amazed that such lawlessness could exist in a civilized country. Probably it shall not, again, anywhere—and for this America breathes thanks."

The real job, however, still remains, states the Humboldt Standard, adding: "This job was outlined recently by J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau, when he declared that the greatest menace to the nation was the alliance between politics and crime that enables such men as Capone, Karpis and Mahan to prey upon the public. Hoover does not favor the term 'public enemy,' but he admits that if it is to be applied, it should be used to indicate the political influence which so seriously hampers the activities of law enforcement agencies. Not content with going after the actual criminal, the bureau now plans to get those who have given him aid, protection and encouragement in various ways."

"Get rid of the main offender," urges the Santa Barbara News. "Throttle the politician who for personal power arranges freedom for men who repeatedly have proven absolute disregard for law. But it is not the unscrupulous politician alone who is to blame for the unleashing of paroled convicts upon the public. Jointly guilty are the supine, sentimental and gullible parole boards who often cannot be convinced that a prisoner is 'a hardened criminal' until, given his freedom, he goes forth with blazing gun and distorted mind to commit more gruesome crimes than those of which he has already been convicted."

MEMORIAL DAY

War has taken the dead we honor on Memorial Day, and thoughts of war will come to many of the nation's millions as wreaths are placed over mounds of sod.

People will react in various ways to the visions these thoughts call forth. Ardent patriots will feel a sense of pride in the country's war history. Ardent pacifists will reflect with bitterness, the horror and futility of war.

But somewhere in between seems to lie true understanding, concerned less with war itself than with realization that here are men who faced death with courage.

No Memorial Day shall ever pass but that America will turn back to find the greatest expression of this understanding in the words Lincoln spoke at Gettysburg:

"We are met on a great battle field of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field, as a final resting place of those who here gave their lives that that nation might live. * * * It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us—that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion."

TANGIER'S CANYON-LIKE STREETS

The interest of Tangier, as a city, lies in its native quarter, which comprises most of the town. It is a maze of narrow streets, or, more accurately, lanes and alleys, for they are just wide enough to allow the passage of a laden ass, and wheeled vehicles never attempt to enter. The lanes twist and turn like a rabbit's warren, sometimes making off at right angles and, oftentimes, becoming tunnels under the houses, clambering up slopes, transformed into stairways, and descending into hollows where the balconies of the houses overhang the footway. Above the roofs of these houses rise the minarets of the mosques, flaunting their azulejo towers like jeweled surfaces against the clear blue of the sky. The white plaster houses are square, unadorned, flat-roofed buildings, resembling nothing so much as houses of blocks, and are broken by small, shuttered windows. Little workshops line the ways where men, cross-legged, accomplish their tasks without machinery, in the primitive fashion of their forefathers. The shops, or stalls, are nothing more than square boxes in the walls, and the merchants, after removing their stockingless feet, clamber over the counters and drop inside. There quiet, imperturbable, sitting cross-legged or reclining on couches, usually chatting impassively with friends, they wait for customers to appear. The picture they make is precisely the conventional one so often seen in photographs of oriental bazaars. The merchants themselves, with bearded faces, and fezzed or turbaned heads, are tall, stately fellows, of distinguished bearing, quite different from the motley crowd encountered in the plebeian precincts of the market place. The schools, which are passed here and there along the streets, are, like the shops, mere cubicles in the walls, and in them, before the white-robed and turbaned teacher, the picturesque children of the quarter sit cross-legged on the ground, learning the precepts of the Koran.

These canyon-like streets, whose cobbled surfaces the sun rarely strikes, present a moving panorama of oriental activity. Here are white-robed Arabs, of immense dignity and calm, with turbaned heads and slippered feet, who tread the ways with stately grace; Jews in dark-colored gaberdines, as swarthy and as solemn as the Moors themselves, stalk unhesitatingly by; boys at play, in smock and fez; women, shrouded to the eyes, in their white coverings, move silently to and fro, like ghosts; little girls, dressed in close imitation of their mothers; half-clad Sudanese and occasional Bedouins, who flit by with furtive step; and Negro water sellers, dressed in tatters and shod in flat soles of leather tied to their feet with thongs, bear immense goatskins of water on their backs and walk rapidly along, ringing their bells and crying to the housekeepers to buy.—From "Spanish Towns and People," by Robert Medill McBride.

Politically Speaking

By GEORGE E. HELMER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
SACRAMENTO May 28 —(AP)—

One day after the 51st legislature convenes in special session to solve emergency relief problems, the campaigns for the 52nd legislature will start officially.

It was only a coincidence that led to the calling of a special session May 25, with May 26 being the first day for circulating petitions and filing notification of intention to try for legislative positions, but the arrangement will serve as a natural ballyhoo start for those legislators who will seek re-election.

The lawmakers assembling here next week must limit their bill passing to subjects outlined in the governor's call but they may bring up resolutions on every conceivable subject and argue as long as they wish to remain in Sacramento at their own expense.

Gov. Frank F. Merriam confidently expected resolutions condemning his administration and possibly advocating investigation of the SRA. But he was not worried. "Let the boys have a good time—I have the power to veto any bills they might pass which do not fit in with the program I have outlined. As for resolutions, there's nothing to stop them. That's all right. I expect the legislators will have a lot of fun."

Since the lawmakers will receive only mileage and must pay their own expenses here, without drawing extra salary, it was not believed the session would extend beyond three days. The actual work, relating to relief as planned by Merriam, could be accomplished within a few hours. But it usually takes at least several hours for the lawmakers to settle down to business, and much more time is devoted to argument and discussion of unrelated subjects.

Senator Culbert Olson, EPIC leader during the last session, will come here victorious in a suit through which his political enemies sought to oust him from the senate, or from his position as attorney retained by the United States attorney general.

Under state law, it is not possible for a state official to hold federal office. Attorney General U. S. Webb ruled, however, that Olson was not a United States office holder, but an attorney retained by the United States, and therefore was entitled to retain his position as state senator.

The suit was undertaken, observers believed, in an effort to deprive Olson of power. Had it been necessary for him to leave either of the positions, he would have lost considerable influence and prestige.

Olson has been a thorn in the side of McAdoo democrats, and recently broke with the EPIC faction. Politicians were interested in seeing how much power he could swing during the next legislative session.

Capitol officials chuckled when they learned that one of the governor's southern California admirers wired him a sharp criticism for his reputed participation in a movement supporting the proposed liquor initiative sponsored by the board of equalization.

As a matter of fact, Merriam had no connection with the proposal and any discussion linking him with what promises to be one of the hottest issues in the November election was regarded by observers as "one of the funniest things we've heard."

Controller Ray L. Riley, while not having much to say publicly since his first blast against the liquor initiative, has been investigating quietly and it was believed generally that he was preparing to lead a fight against what he considers a "preposterous" amendment.

Reports from the south indicated a strong drive was on to raise funds to finance the initiative's campaign. Liquor interests, hotel and restaurant operators and others dealing in liquor were being solicited for money.

According to some rumors, the Los Angeles county democratic central committee proved itself a piker when it charged the republican board would have a "slush fund" of $15,000 to finance the initiative. Other estimates have placed the potential fund as high as $1,000,000, and those opposed to the liquor control amendment have begun to wonder how they will combat the drive if it is financed so heavily.

LIQUOR STAMP BATTLE ENDS WITH LETTERS

SACRAMENTO May 28 —(UP)—The "battle of the stamps" which caused a furore to extend over a period of months because the state board of equalization and the department of finance could not agree on the purchase of liquor excise tax stamps ended with an exchange of letters between the two departments.

What was believed to have been the last shot fired in the exchange was a letter from J. Fred Misphey, state purchasing agent, to Dixwell Pierce, secretary of the board, informing him that stamps had been ordered on the basis of a new contract and in conformance with the board's request.

Pierce's last letter to the finance department said the board would not consider itself responsible for any loss which might be suffered through the stamp contract issued by the department.

The warfare started originally when Finance Director A. E. Stockburger refused to approve a stamp contract granted to the American Decalomania Co., Chicago. New bids were called, and the board again recommended awarding the contract to the Chicago firm, but Stockburger chose the Consolidated Decalomania, Brooklyn, and Schwabacher-Frey, San Francisco, whose bid was 16 cents per thousand lower.

"Jeweled Ore" Found In Carlotta Mine Workings

TUOLUMNE, May 21—(UP)—Discovery of gold-bearing ore assaying $173.95 a ton was reported by operators of the recently reopened Carlotta mine near here.

The find was of the "jeweled ore" type, ribbon quartz carrying galena flecked with free gold. Miners struck the vein, ranging in width from 12 to 14 inches, while driving a new tunnel on the 300-foot level.

The mine is operated by the Carlotta Metals Company Ltd.

TAHOE REGION NEWS

By Swane

Newest of Tahoe's distinctive resorts is Prusso's Forest Inn and Gardens, the formal opening of which has been set for Saturday, June 13th. Ideally located on picturesque Ward Creek it is sheltered and enhanced by cedar, pine, tamarack and aspen, and alder bushes whose foliage creates a riot of crimson and gold along the banks of the musical little creek each fall.

Representing an investment of approximately $18,000 Prusso's Forest Inn offers the public the maximum of comfort, quality and service, combining a pleasing, artistic atmosphere with food of consistently distinctive character.

The visitor enters the attractive club room (18 x 28) furnished with roomy lounging chairs and dials of brown leather where the finest of beers, wines, liquors and mixed drinks may be obtained. Spacious windows overlooking a garden of multi-colored flowers and shrubs are draped in imported crash of rust red, all windows boasting sand blasted panel valances with wrought iron ends. A stone fireplace graces one corner, it's cheery flickering log fire lending a cozy aspect to the low convexed ceiling. Both panatrophe and radio will make dance music available at any hour. Lighting fixtures in the club room and throughout the entire building will be intriguingly novel, featuring electrically lighted hanging lanterns modeled in brass and copper, the saffron tinted parchment shades diffusing subdued illumination.

Leaving the clubroom, one next enters the main dining room where breakfast, luncheon, dinner and supper will be served throughout the season. The highest quality food and service obtainable will be maintained at all times. The charming and gracious hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Prusso, aim to make their maxim this four word phrase. "Food with a character." Charcoal broiled steaks will be especially featured.

Lacquered tables will be laid with white doilies, in place of the customary tablecloths, furniture throughout the dining rooms to be of Carmel design in dark maple adorned with wild flower decorations in keeping with the rural atmosphere.

An interesting innovation is the dinner ware secured by Mr. Prusso, which is radically new in pattern and contour. His order was the first of its kind sold on the Pacific coast at the time of sale two weeks ago. Instead of the wide bordered plates in general use today the new dishes, oyster white with deep rose floral pattern, feature a new narrow rim, permitting greater space availability for food. A bright touch of color will be added by the service plates and odd pieces in yellow, green and terra cotta. A rock fire place will lend charm and warmth to the room, while drapes in appropriate but exclusive hand blocked design on desert cloth in green, blue, red, yellow and brown will frame the windows. The polished oak floors will be uncarpeted. The high, open ceilings are artistically and effectively braced with native, hand peeled, and polished pine logs.

Leaving the main dining room one may pass through a connecting arch into a second dining room, 18x37 furnished in identical manner with a third artistic rock fireplace reaching to the ceiling. It is estimated that 112 persons may be comfortably served at one time in the two spacious rooms.

Off the main dining room, a rear door opens onto a flagstoned patio 20 x 30. Here white enameled tables and chairs decorated in blue are sheltered from the sun by large blue and white table umbrellas. Another wide rustic openface fireplace adds cheer and welcome warmth to chilly evenings. Here one may dine and relax, listening to the never ceasing tinkle of the rushing brook, feasting the eyes upon a gala array of blue delphinium and golden-glow, intermingled with wild woodwardia fern which graces also the cool little rock fountain in the heart of the shaded home of the songsters of night, the frogs. A rock wall made with pockets for fern and plants, will enclose the rear gardens and add materially to it's natural beauty.

The structure designed by Architect George Rossi of San Francisco, is rapidly nearing completion under the supervision of Contractor F. A. Kilner and his carpenter foreman Andy Anderson of Truckee, who have set something of a record for Tahoe construction, having started work on April 21st, less than five weeks ago at this writing.

Joe Re and son Eugene and crew of men are responsible for the artistic chimneys, rock work and gay flagstone patios and paths as well as the landscaping. Otto Darlin is installing the electrical work with much of the wrought iron being modeled by Lief Nielsen. Joe Duffee is the plumbing contractor and Harold Langille of Truckee is installing a Spark oil burner heating system. The building materials were supplied by the Truckee Tahoe Lumber Company.

Parking space of 600 feet will be provided for automobiles in front.

Mr. and Mrs. Prusso who are ardent lovers of Tahoe, deserve whole hearted patronage, as Mr. Prusso has insisted from the first upon hiring all local men and upon purchasing all equipment and supplies from local business firms, an admirable consideration which should merit sincere cooperation.

Watch for special announcement of grand opening in these columns.

Mrs. N. R. Mayfield will leave this week for a visit in San Francisco with friends. She plans to be gone for a week or ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rossi of San Francisco were visitors in Tahoe on Sunday where they were the guests of the Everett Prussos on Ward Creek. Mr. Rossi's mother accompanied them.

Mrs. Charles Swanson of Sunnyside observed another birthday with a dinner at which Mr. and Mrs. William Topp of Homewood and James Wilson were guests. Other guests during the day included Mr. and Mrs. Art Sather of Auburn who spent the day, unsuccessfully, fishing on the lake.

J. L. Debenedetti Sr. accompanied by several men friends arrived on Friday to spend some time at the family residence in the Sunnyside district. This week Joe Re started the long rock wall which will run the length of the Debenedetti property from the highway to the lake front.

Various caretakers who left sprinklers on last week on Tuesday and Wednesday nights to encourage the growth of new lawns and flower beds were surprised to find in the morning that the entire surrounding area reached by the water was frozen hard long icicles hung from bushes and trees, each leaf and branch coated with ice.

Two new operators have been added to the list of summer assistants at the Tahoe telephone office, Miss Jean Steel of Stockton and Miss Catherine Murphy of Visalia being the latest arrivals.

Worden's Camp Ground has been enjoying an early pre-season run of guests, last week's notables included Mrs. Howard Park and guest of Hillsboro, Mrs. Andy Bozart and Mrs. F. Forbes of Marysville, W. D. Franzee and George Raycraft of San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Julius O. Dohrmann of San Leandro, H. W. Ekland and son of San Rafael.

the time of planting. Planted too early they will freeze, and planted too late they will mature too late for summer blossoming. Mr. Re will run in the column each week an authentically correct chapter on gardening for the guidance of Tahoe garden lovers, beginning with the preparation of the soil right on up, step by step, to a full fledged blooming garden.

Notable among Mr. Re's recent artistic achievements are the Lo Curto Gardens of San Jose where 900 tons of rock were fashioned into beautiful waterfalls, patios, walks, beds, etc., and where rare and colorful flowers and shrubs bloom in abundance; the A. R. Westphal estate 'Westlake' where a new rock fountain, lighted at night and enhanced by delicate flowers and five finger ferns was built last fall; the Henry Kaiser estate 'Tall Pines' where landscape gardening and rock work was done on a large scale; the J. Chas. Harris home in Timberland Tract where a new and 'different' barbecue pit and warming closet were erected last year and the J. L. Debenedetti Sunnyside home where a rock wall 260 feet long and 5 feet high is in the course of erection this week.

Mr. Re has accumulated rock from all parts of the world, the prettiest, perhaps, being the vivid colored Yula Showa (Indian for beautiful rock) which comes from San Jose. If you plan a Tahoe garden this year don't miss a chapter of Mr. Re's interesting articles titled "Building a Tahoe Garden Step by Step." Watch for the first of the series next week.

Humidity, lowering skies and occasional thunder storms of the past week were climaxed on Tuesday with showers. On Sunday night one of the most beautiful display of vivid colors were witnessed over the lake. From a deep gun metal blue which spread over lake and mountains, every color of the rainbow was represented in the evening sky, surpassing the eloquence of description. As this goes to press the wind is blowing, rain is falling and skies are heavily overcast.

Construction was started this week on Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Pedersen's new seven room residence and office in Tahoe Park. N. R. Mayfield of Tahoe, the builder, also reports additional work at the Sweetland job near Fleishacker's where another guest house and servants quarters are being erected on the 100 acre estate.

A. E. Sorensen, Brockway contractor, has under construction for Mrs. Anna Loomis of Reno, a Tahoe rustic home at Carnelian Bay. The house will be ready for occupancy about July 1st.

Forces Unite In Drive Against Single Tax

SAN FRANCISCO May 21—Uniting forces for a determined drive to prevent ruinous land taxation in California which would result in the wholesale tax-confiscation of homes, farms and business properties, organization was announced here today of the California Association Against "Single Tax" to combat a single tax proposal which will appear on the November ballot in the guise of a sales tax repeal act.

Clem Whitaker, publicist and campaign executive, was appointed as the association's campaign manager to direct a campaign against the dangerous "single tax" scheme throughout Northern California. Headquarters of the association have been established at 111 Sutter Street, San Francisco, and the northern group will cooperate with the California Committee Against the "Single Tax," which has been formed to wage a similar campaign in Southern California.

Joining the association are farm organizations, civic groups, tax bodies, women's organizations and a score of other associations in a coordinated campaign to defeat the land tax and avert the financial chaos which would result from repeal of the sales tax.

"Enactment of the discredited 'single tax' in California would place a staggering tax burden on land and all common property taxpayers which would inevitably result in wholesale tax delinquencies and evictions," asserted Donzel Stoney, president of the association.

"It would cost thousands of home owners, farmers and business men their life savings. It would disrupt industry, boost rents to prohibitive figures, drain the state treasury and plunge California into a mad form of radical experimentation which has bankrupt every community where it has been attempted.

"Under normal conditions, the 'single tax'—six times heavily defeated by California voters—would be quickly repudiated, but the proposal is exceedingly dangerous in the clever disguise in which it is presented to the voters on this year's ballot. To catch the unthinking voter, it is baited with a sales tax repeal proviso and special exemptions and every disguise which its sponsors could conceive to hide its real purpose.

"But California voters can not afford to be deceived. The 'single tax' is the brain-child of radical theorists who deny the right of individual ownership of property and are determined to force all property into state ownership by the simple expedient of tax-confiscation. Every voter should make it his business to defeat this vicious measure by such a decisive majority that it will be disposed of for all time."

Celebrating Buddha's Birthday

In a colorful ceremony in the beautiful Japanese Tea Gardens of Golden Gate park, San Francisco, oriental priests commemorate the twenty-five hundred and second anniversary of the birth of Siddhartha Gautama, known to the world as Buddha, founder of the great Buddhist religion. The ceremony, called "Wesak," which is the Sanskrit word for "the time in April of the full moon," included a ritual of pouring tea over a baby Buddha.

grouse, but no one has reported seeing them since July of 1934, and the state department of natural resources wonders whether it should send out a searching party.

The game bird, widely distributed through the barren regions of Africa, Egypt, Persia and India, was introduced to California by M. E. Lombardi of San Francisco, who noticed them while traveling through Mesopotamia and Arabia.

Twenty-one birds were obtained from a California breeder and in March 1934, were placed in temporary holding pens constructed near Palmdale. Later, they were released in the hope they would multiply and eventually provide California hunters with a new kind of sport.

Periodically, for three months, the birds were reported seen by civilians and game wardens. Frequently they returned to the vicinity of the pens. But since July, 1934, no one has reported any in that area.

Conservationists feared the attempt to introduce the sand grouse failed, although they admitted there was a chance that the birds found their way into the wilderness of the desert and may be living there in abundance.

The sand grouse is a medium-sized bird with short, weak legs and large, strong wings. A swift flier, it travels long distances for twice daily trips to water.

The weak legs prevent the grouse from alighting in trees or shrubbery, and he lives on the ground, preferably in dry, open deserts and plains and never in moist or wooded sections.

Because of its wariness and swift flight, it furnishes excellent sport for hunters, according to department experts. But its habit of visiting water holes regularly has worked to the disadvantage of the species since many have been slaughtered by hunters shooting from blinds constructed at watering places.

Except for the sport of hunting them, California sportsmen have missed nothing by the birds' disappearance in the Mojave, officials believed. Although used widely as a food in foreign countries where they abound, the flesh of the sand grouse is said to be dry and lacking in flavor.

Bush Says State's Oil Supply Not Exhausted

SACRAMENTO May 28—(UP)—California crude oil and natural gas fields are in no danger of becoming exhausted, but to maintain an increased rate of consumption new flush fields must be discovered to offset the decline in present fields, according to R. D. Bush, state oil and gas supervisor.

"California has experienced periods of both over-production and shortage, and at present has a potential oil production greater than consumption," Bush said.

The supervisor pointed out however that no new field of major importance has been discovered since Mountain View in 1933 and "it is possible that the necessity for curtailment and proration will not continue much longer.

"If one or more of the 130 wildcat wells now being drilled is successful in discovering a field of considerable size and productivity, curtailment and proration will have to continue," he explained.

Of the 130 wildcat wells being drilled, 16 were being sunk by major companies and the remainder by independents. Of the total, 85 were being drilled to discover new fields and 45 for extensions or deeper zones in present fields.

Court Ruling Removes Restrictions On Claims

SACRAMENTO May 28—(UP)—Restrictions placed on expense claims of legislative interim committees were removed by Controller Ray L. Riley when the state supreme court held that committees could spend the full amount of their appropriation for any purpose needed in their investigation work.

Riley said committees could spend their appropriations for anything, so far as he was concerned.

The question arose months ago when Assemblyman Leon M. Donihue's committee was particularly active investigating alleged irregularities in administration offices. The department of finance held that he could not spend committee money to finance the work of auditors hired by the board, or to purchase reports submitted by the auditors. This attitude blocked Donihue from further intensive, independent inquiry into the handling of expense accounts, revolving funds, use of state credit for personal purchases and other reported irregularities.

Washoe County Conservation District. If construction of the reservoir can be commenced this Fall, it will be completed in 1938 and ready for operation in 1939.

Engineers have estimated that Washoe County farmers will have plenty of water this season for their needs, and probably next season as well, without resorting to lake pumping.

In addition, the new agreement proposes to remedy controversial questions relating to lake levels and diversions. The high level of the lake is set at 6,229.1 feet and safeguards are provided against a higher level being reached. Under no circumstances will the lake level go under 6,223.3, and diversions through other channels than the natural channel of the Truckee River are forbidden.

The regular meeting of the Parent Teachers Association was held on Thursday evening at the school house. This will be the last meeting for the school term and arrangements were made for the closing exercises and a party for the children. Bill Otis and John McLeod are members of the graduating class and will be the honored guests at the social time planned for Saturday afternoon. A program will be the most interesting feature of the day for the parents and friends, but the refreshments will probably be the big event of the day for the youngsters. Mrs. Atkins and the Parent Teacher Association have planned a treat for the children.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hill accompanied by Mrs. Austin Otis and Mrs. Banks spent Sunday in Grass Valley and Nevada City, where they visited friends.

Grand Exit At Donner Saturday Night

If you're the sort of person who thrills at the sound of the fire engine siren, who never misses a blaze for miles around, who gives chase the moment a siren screeches, "Grand Exit," which shows at the Donner Theatre Saturday, May 30 was filmed for your personal pleasure.

Produced by Columbia Studios, with Edmund Lowe, Ann Southern and Onslow Stevens heading the cast, "Grand Exit" is a fast-moving and exhilarating picture, designed to thrill motion picture audiences who revel in exciting and robust film fare.

"You May Be Next," Columbia's amazing drama of a super-criminal's attempt to hi-jack the billion dollar radio industry with his discovery of a secret radio wave capable of transforming every broadcast into unintelligible bedlam, will open locally at the Donner Theatre on Sunday night May 31.

An Southern and Lloyd Nolan share the featured roles with Duglass Dumbrille, John Arledge and Berton Churchill.

High adventure of the sort that sets your pulses pounding; glamorous nights of romance in the tropics; roistering, boisterous comedy—those are the elements from which the suspense filled action of "A Message to Garcia," 20th Century's fascinating adventure romance, at the Donner Theatre, Wednesday night, June 3, were woven.
